The President's Letter to Grant. In our telegraphic columns, this morning, will be found President Johnson's expected letter, which concludes, for the present, the elebrated Grant-Jounson controversy. Out the Radicals, has asserted in one of his let-ters that he accepted the post of Secretary of War all interim for the purpose of defeating the object the President had in view when he suspended Stauton. It is absurd to suppose that Johnson absurd to suppose that Johnson would have put Grant in the office or suffered him to remain in it if he had known or suspected that the General harbored the purpose he has since avowed. It is obvious that General Grant could not have succeeded, as he did, in foiling the President unless the latter had been deceived by his subordinate. In the correspondence heretolore published General Grant has design the charge that he had misled the President as to the course he would pursue in a certain contingency. The President now comes out and proves the charge by the members of the calinet.

We write before the whole of the Presi-ent's letter is received, and can speak of only a part of the contents, but we have need sist Ward Democratic Units satisfaction. Had the health of that distinguished gentleman been such as to admit of his taking his seat in the Senate the wishes of the people of Kentucky would have been consulted by his retaining his position; but it is of the first importance that Kentucky at a time like this should be fully represented on the floor of the Senate, and it is, therefore, generally conceded that in resigning Mr. Guthrie has acted the part of a true Kentuckian and a patriot. In this connection it is perhaps proper to say that we are satisfied that the resolutions of Mr. Justice, which were some time since introce, which were some time since int Justice, which were some time since intro-duced in the House of Representatives were prompted by no want of confidence in Sena-tor Guthrie, but had their origin in the same patriotic motives which influenced Mr.

Mr. Dickens-How he Looks. The Boston Post thus describes the a rance of Mr. Dickeus on the o of his lecture:

Mr. Dickens, in brief, for our notice the occasion this morning is limited, ander the ordinary stature. He is som what thin in the face, but has consider ble color. There is no look, or very life, of the conventional Englishman. He eye is sharp, penetrating, and at tim stern; but it has also a merry twink when he reads a passage of the hume ous. His nose is sharp and rather largand his countenance one of marked it utilizence and interest. His hair is the his lecture: appel of his cost's sprig or two of rs. On a flager of his left hand illamond ring, and in his bosom tude also glistening with the pre-tiones. Though well got up there othing flashy in his appearance can be short properly and modest as he has often been described.

The platform was arranged after Dickens' own plan or taste, we presu A large screen covered with red c spotted with black, was placed at rear. In front at an elevation of st ten feet was a tier of shaded gas lig A table stood midway on the platfo the latter of which was covered by a and black carpet. The table was cow with velvet, and in front was embrered. Upon the lid at the side was a canter of water, and a tumbler, for which at intervals Mr. Dickens took of water. Upon the top of the table a fittle desk, and here it was that reader placed his books as he proceed with his performance.

The drawing of the fails of the Ohio by Gen. Weitzel's corps of engineers is certainly one of the fluest pieces of workmanship that could be made. It is on drawing paper, and occupies a space of seven by four feet. Every rock, bar, shoal, point, and in fact, every obstruction on the fails is marked and located in its proper place with wonderful skill. This work has occupied several months, and it reflects great credit upon the skill and genius of the draltamen of Gen. Weitzel's corps. The original drawing is still in the office, and will be presented to W. Minor Roberts, Eq., who has charge of the government survey of the Ohio river. Mr. BUTLER moved to strike out the item for the compensation of Assistant Secretary's clerk, and of portions of three clerks of the fourth class, employed by the President of the United States, which, after debate, was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Logan the item for the salary of Solicitor for Internal Revenue Department was struck out.

Mr. WOODWARD moved to cancel by appropriation for the office of military justice. Bejected.

The Committee rose, and the Speaker presented some unimportant communications and one from the Secretary of War as to the project of constructing a ratifroid on the west bank of the Mississippi, irom 81. Francis river, and a statement of contracts made by the Quartermaster's Department in January.

The Speaker also presented a message from the President, to a content with your allence, desired an expression of your views, and you answered him that Mr. Stanton Ways and Means, reported a bill to facilitate the collection of the direct tax in Delaware. The bill makes the assessment for that purpose. Passed.

Mr. LOGAN asked leave to offer a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Navy for the correspondence of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, relating to the removal of appointment of assessors or coffectors, but Mr. Wood objected.

On motion of Mr. Baker, the Committee on Ways and Means, reported a bill to facilitate the correspondence of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, relating to the removal of appointment of assessors or coffectors, but Mr. Wood objected.

O. H. BROWNING. To the President.

conference on the saligest, which be, as well as yourself, understood could reasonably take place on Monday.

Yon, then alluded to the fact that General Grant did not call upon yon, as you expected, from that conversation. Gen. Grant admitted that it was his expectation or purpose to call upon yon Monday. Gen. Grant assigned reasons for the omission. He said that he was in conference with Gen. Sherman, that as there were many little matters to be attended to, be had conversed upon the unsiter of surrendering the War. Department with Gen. Sherman would call on Monday. My owns mind suggested a further explanation, but it do not remember whether it was mentioned for not, namely, it was not supposed by Gen. Grant on Monday that the Sambe would decide the question so promptly, as to anticipate a further explanation between yourself and him if delayed seyond that day. Gen. Grant made another explanation, that he was engaged on Sunday with Gen. Sherman, and I think also Monday, in , regard to the War Department, with a hope, though he did not say in an effort, to procure an amicable settlement of the affair of Mr. Stanton, and still hoped it would be brought about.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your obedient servant, WM. H. SEWARD.
